Arlington, VA -- The Working Families Party today announced its endorsement of Charles McCullough for Arlington County Board.

“Charles McCullough’s campaign is about making sure everyone has a voice, and making sure Arlington County truly works for all working families, not just the wealthy and well-connected,” said Joe Dinkin, a spokesperson for the Working Families Party. “He’s part of a wave of inspiring progressive local candidates we’re seeing all around the nation step up and run on a bold and transformative vision for change. The Working Families Party is proud and very happy to support him.”

The Working Families Party will mobilize its grassroots supporter base to volunteer for Charles McCullough in advance of the election. The Working Families Party endorsement is a “seal of approval” for progressive voters.

“I am so excited to have the endorsement of the Working Families Party,” said Charles. “I am campaigning to bring a progressive, independent voice to the Arlington County Board. The board needs to do more to ‘Put People First,’ which is why I will ensure Arlingtonians are more meaningfully included in policymaking and that the budget is reflective of an inclusive vision for Arlington. By prioritizing schools, early childhood care, housing affordability for low- and mid-income residents, multimodal transportation solutions, local business assistance, public services for aging-in-place, and green spaces, I will advocate for an Arlington that preserves the unique qualities of our different neighborhoods while preparing for future growth.”
